Extended Forecast – Multiple waves of showers are expected to continue tomorrow through Friday. The tstorm threat will be low but can't be completely ruled out. The highest impactful weather day is expected to be Friday when heavy rainfall will be possible throughout the day. Rain on Friday will give way to dry conditions over the weekend with mostly sunny skies expected by Sunday as high pressure builds across the region. Overnight lows will be in the 50s with daytime highs ranging from the 60s to 70s. The strongest winds of the period are expected over the weekend when gusts 15-20 mph will be possible.
