WHY WATCH
Potentially Historic Week for Nelly Korda
There is a lot on the table for Korda this week. With a win, Korda would enter into the LPGA Hall of Fame and win The ANNIKA for the fourth time in her 10-year career.

Korda would earn her 27th and final point for the LPGA Hall of Fame and become the 36th player in LPGA Tour history to join the Hall of Fame and the first since Lydia Ko in 2024. See here for the full Hall of Fame Points Breakdown.

Fans could also see Korda pass Annika Sorenstam to become the leader of the all-time career money list, a spot that Sorenstam has held for 25 years at $22,583,694. Korda will enter the week $253,921 behind Sorenstam, so a tie for second place finish or better would be enough for Korda to break the record.

In the tournament's six-year history, Korda has won three times and has shot in the 60s every round except for two. If she goes on to win the 2026 edition, she would become the first player since 1980 to win a tournament four or more times in just seven appearances and the fifth player to win the same tournament at least four times since Se Ri Pak (Jamie Farr Kroger Classic (1998, 1999, 2001, 2003, 2007).

The Final Push of the Season
The ANNIKA is the final stop before the season-ending CME Group Tour Championship, giving the week consequences and rewards beyond the trophy. The Top 60 in the Race to the CME Globe qualify for the CME Group Tour Championship, where they will have a chance to compete for a $4 million prize, the single largest prize in women's golf.

An Exciting Week at Pelican Golf Club
In recent history, Pelican Golf Club has provided some of the most memorable moments ahead of the season-ending event, the CME Group Tour Championship.

Last year, Nataliya Guseva holed out for an eagle on the 72nd hole of the tournament to finish tied for seventh and earn her spot in the CME Group Tour Championship. Additionally, Brooke Matthews made an ace in her final round to help her move inside the top 60.

In 2024, Nelly Korda captured her seventh title of the season, becoming the first player since Yani Tseng in 2011 to do so. Weiwei Zhang carded a third round 62, eventually finishing the week runner-up to earn her spot in the CME Group Tour Championship the next week.

Then, in 2023, Lilia Vu came from three shots back in the final round to capture her fourth victory of the year to help her win the Rolex Player of the Year Award.
