Extended Forecast – The far northern portions of Champi will begin to bring showers across our area this evening into tonight. The typhoon current sits about 200 miles off the coast of Taiwan and is expected to remain over open waters as it shifts to the north. With Champi on the move, the center is expected to be located around 200-250 miles to our south on Sunday and will have weakened to a tropical storm. The current projected path will result in showers throughout the weekend, but dangerous weather and elevated winds are expected to remain well south of our area. Overnight lows will be in the 50s to lower 60s with daytime highs in the mid-60s to near 70F by Monday.
