Today – Overcast to mostly cloudy this morning becoming partly sunny this afternoon. Much of the day will remain dry, but a patch of drizzle or mist cannot be ruled out early this morning, and a stray light shower may occur towards the end of the round. Light northwesterly winds will turn westerly this afternoon at 5-12 mph. Sunrise: 6:49am / Sunset: 5:36pm | Forecast rainfall: Less than 0.02”

Extended forecast – Forecast confidence has lowered for Saturday as recent model guidance has begun to suggest that a disturbance in the Gulf will promote a scattered coverage of rain and isolated thunderstorms on Saturday afternoon. Dry conditions are likely to return on Sunday, although some patchy fog may develop prior to 8am. Westerly winds are expected each day with temperatures climbing into the low 80s.

Forecast prepared by DTN meteorologist Joe Halvorson.
