Extended forecast – A passing upper-level disturbance will bring another wave of cloud cover to the area on Friday. While dry conditions likely prevail, some light rainfall can't be completely ruled out. The pattern will transition to a warmer and breezier pattern for the weekend. Wind gusts near 25 mph are expected Saturday and closer to 35 mph on Sunday. A threat for showers/T-storms could also develop Saturday night into early Sunday morning. Most of the daylight hours Sunday would stay dry.
