Saturday – Windy and cool conditions will continue today with sustained winds near 20 mph (32 km/hr) and wind gusts near 25 mph (40 km/hr). Rounds of light rain are likely in the morning and possible in the afternoon. Heavy rain and lightning are not expected today. Periods of drier conditions between rounds of rain are expected. Due to persistent cloud cover the temperature will only climb a few degrees from the morning into the mid 60s F (upper 10s C).

Sunday – Similar conditions to Saturday are expected tomorrow with rainy, windy, and cool conditions. Scattered rain showers will remain in the area, but heavy rain and lightning are not expected. Due to the scattered nature of the rain, dry periods are likely throughout the day. Winds will turn from the west to the northwest and increase slightly with sustained winds still near 20 mph (32 km/hr), but some wind gusts up to 30 mph (48 km/hr) will be possible. Cool temperatures in the low 60s F (upper 10s C) are expected in the afternoon.
