QUOTABLES

Jennifer Kupcho (1st, -5) on if there was anything she could point to in missing the cut the last three years

"Not necessarily. I think my parents have always pushed me like, hey, why don't you go try and see the golf course beforehand? I'm like, no, like I don't do that. I never do that for any other tournament. Why would I change that for the U.S. Open? I wouldn't say I necessarily went out of my way since we were here in L.A. at El Cab, but it definitely made it super easy to come out and see it. Then when I showed up this week, it was just like I knew where everything was, I knew what I was doing. So I think it actually helped. Parents are always right, right? Yeah, I think that certainly helped, but I think I just have a great setup. Like I really like this golf course. It kind of fits my eye. With the great host family, it just makes the whole week easier."

Sei Young Kim (2nd, -4) on making a birdie on No. 10 today

"No. 10 is a hole the green goes right to left. You have to keep the left side of the fairway. If not, it's really tough to attack the pin even under -- it's tough on the green if you miss the right side. So I try to focus on my tee shot to keep the left side fairway. Yeah, I hit it good the first tee shot, and I was able to make a birdie, then starting out really solid with that."

Gaby Lopez (T3, -3) on talking with the grounds crew and the kitchen staff at every event

"Yeah, this week, I'm telling you, everyone is Mexican in the kitchen. Everyone is Mexican in the staff and the groundskeepers. I don't know, I really like to stay close to them. I love to say thank you and hello by their name, and I think they need that respect and they need that showcase as well, because they wake up at 3:00, 4:00 a.m. every single day for us, and we don't see it. We just show up and play. There's people behind making the work for us, and I think me just taking a little bit of time and just staying close to them, I mean, they're Mexican, I'm Mexican, and I'm very proud to represent them."

Nelly Korda (T57, +2) on how her round felt

"Yeah, just honestly just hit it really poorly off the tee. Found myself in a lot of trouble on the wrong sides of a lot of these pins. I just felt like I was kind of just grinding to make safe pars. It wasn't a great day. I hit it really good Monday through Wednesday, so I have honestly no idea where this came from. So I'm going to go to the range."
