Extended forecast – A weakening front will allow for scattered showers to occur Friday, but rainfall will be limited to less than 0.10"/2.5 mm. Areas of fog are expected to develop Saturday morning with improvement to visibility anticipated by 0900. Dry conditions are forecast for much of Saturday, with just an isolated passing shower or patch of drizzle possible. Another front will return likely chances for rain for much of Sunday, but there remains a large spread in the model guidance in terms of rainfall amounts.

Forecast prepared by DTN meteorologist Joe Halvorson.
